- Topic of Discussion:

GPAEE's September Event, Clean Energy's Perfect Storm, will explore Pennsylvania's perfect storm of newly mandated renewable, efficiency, and demand side management markets as well as a wave of state and federal tax and financial incentives. The presentation strives to provide a context with which to understand the resulting markets and establish positions to capture opportunities and meet challenges.

- Speakers Background:

Mr. Thomas Tuffey, Director of the PennFuture Center for Energy, Enterprise and the Environment in Philadelphia.

Tuffey is an experienced entrepreneur with particular interests in developing enterprise solutions to energy issues. He has been actively involved in over two dozen mergers, acquisitions and many organization startups. He has served on many boards of directors in both the private and public interest sectors.

Previously, Tuffey was the executive director of the Sustainable Energy Fund, a $20 million non-profit private finance company focused on central Pennsylvania. He was also an executive committee member of the Clean Energy States Alliance (CESA), the trade association of the 17 state clean energy funds, with resources of $4 billion.

Tuffey is well known throughout Pennsylvania for his clean energy advocacy and leadership. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Energy Advisory Council and an advisor to the Pennsylvania Energy Development Authority. Wind power development, green buildings, and agricultural biodigesters in

- Speakers' Background:

Pennsylvania have all been areas of special accomplishment.

Tuffey's 35-year career has all been focused in the environmental field. He was a student activist while at Rutgers University, representing New Jersey on the national advisory board of Student Council on Protection of the Environment (SCOPE) as Earth Day first emerged. He continued at Rutgers through two graduate degrees and joined the faculty for four years in the Water Resources Research Institute, and then the Bureau of Engineering Research. He is a graduate of the Wharton Advanced Management Program.
